

James Keefer

Hello,

Welcome to Pathways. My name is James Keefer and I am one of two therapists at Pathways. I have an Ed.D. in Counseling Psychology from Argosy University and a MS in Counseling Psychology, from Frostburg State University. In my practice I see children adolescents, teenagers and adults for a wide range of problems, including, but not limited to adjustment problems, mood disorders, thought disorders, personality, and behavioral disorders. I have worked with developmental disorders – such as autism and Aspergers, serious mental disorders, substance abuse, gambling problems, couples, and court-ordered clients. I have also worked contractually with the Veterans Association doing psychological testing and working on the brain injury unit. I provided individual and group therapy as well while at the hospital. I consider myself a generalist and use a variety of treatment interventions. I work with clients in individual therapy, group, and family therapy. I work with substance abuse clients and problem gamblers. In addition to therapy I also provide psychological assessment and consultation services. .
